When visiting our LinkedIn page, LinkedIn collects, among others your IP address and other information that is present in the form of cookies on your PC. This information is used to provide us, as operator of the LinkedIn page, with statistical information about the use of the LinkedIn page.

The data collected about you in this context will be processed by LinkedIn Ltd. and may be transferred to countries outside the European Union. LinkedIn describes in general what information it receives and how it is used in its Data Use Policy. There you can also find information on how to contact LinkedIn and how to adjust the settings for advertisements.

It is not known to us and LinkedIn does not provide a conclusive and clear statements in what way it uses the data from visits to LinkedIn pages for its own purposes, to what extent activities on the LinkedIn page are assigned to individual users, how long LinkedIn stores this data and whether data from a visit to the LinkedIn page is passed on to third parties.

When accessing a LinkedIn page, the IP address assigned to your terminal device is transmitted to Instagram. According to LinkedIn, this IP address is anonymised (for “German” IP addresses). Furthermore, LinkedIn stores information about the terminal devices of its users (e.g. as part of the “registration notification”). This may enable LinkedIn to assign IP addresses to individual users.

If you are currently logged into LinkedIn as a user, a cookie with your LinkedIn ID is stored on your terminal device. This allows LinkedIn to track that you have visited this page and how you have used it. This also applies to all other LinkedIn pages. LinkedIn buttons embedded in web pages enable LinkedIn to record your visit to these web pages and assign them to your LinkedIn profile. Based on this data, content or advertisement can be offered tailored to you. If you want to avoid this, you should log out of LinkedIn or disable the “stay logged in” feature, delete the cookies that are on your device, exit and restart your browser. This deletes LinkedIn information that can be used to directly identify you. This allows you to use our LinkedIn page without revealing your Instagram ID. When accessing interactive functions of the page (like, comment, share, message etc.), a LinkedIn login screen will appear. Once you have logged in, you will again be visible again as a specific user to LinkedIn.

Information on how to manage or deleted information about you can be found on the following LinkedIn support pages: <https://en.linkedin.com/legal/privacy-policy>

This privacy policy can be found in its current version under “data protection” on our LinkedIn page.
